

American Samoa

American Samoa does not have an unemployment insurance program. However, in the past, residents have been eligible for unemployment benefits following the declaration of a natural disaster. The program is administered by the Federal Emergency Management Association.

In 2018, for example, workers who temporarily lost their jobs due to Tropical Storm Gita were eligible for unemployment wages for up to 26 weeks, no more than $ 180 per week.