

File a Claim

If you've lost your job in Kansas, you can File a Claim at the Kansas Department of Labor's website.

Eligibility

You must be unemployed through no fault of your own, as defined by Kansas law. Here are the three primary ways you may lose your job and how each relates to your Eligibility for benefits:

- Layoffs due to "downsizing" or a reduction-in-force will qualify you for benefits.
- Firing for reasons related to misconduct makes you ineligible for benefits. However, if you're fired simply because you weren't a good fit or lacked the skills to perform the job, you may be able to collect.
- Quitting your job will make you ineligible for benefits unless you can prove there was a compelling work-related reason that forced you to leave (e.g., sexual harassment, dangerous working conditions).

You must have made a certain amount of money before losing your job, which is calculated by your base period. Your base period is the earliest four of the five completed calendar quarters before you filed your benefits claim. For example, if your claim was filed on Oct. 10, 2019, your base period would be the 12-month period beginning July 1, 2018, and ending June 30, 2019. In Kansas, in order to be eligible, you must meet the following wage requirements:

- You must have received wages in at least two of the four quarters of the base period.
- Your total base period wages must be at least one-and-a-quarter times higher than the wages of the highest base period quarter.
- You must have at least 30 times your Weekly Benefit Rate in the entire base period.

You must be able to work, available to work and seeking employment. If you find a suitable position, you must accept it. Suitability varies depending on your skill set, training, salary and more. Over time, if you still haven't found work, you may have to compromise on a job that doesn't quite match what you were doing before.

Duration of Benefits

Kansas residents can collect unemployment benefits for between 16 and 26 weeks, with additional weeks during times of high unemployment.

Weekly Benefit Rate

You could receive somewhere between $118 and $474 per week.
