

File a Claim

If you've lost your job in Nevada, you can File a Claim at the Nevada Department of Employment, Training and Rehabilitation website.

Eligibility

You must be unemployed through no fault of your own, as defined by Nevada law. Here are the three primary ways you may lose your job and how each relates to your Eligibility for benefits:

- Layoffs due to "downsizing" or a reduction-in-force will qualify you for benefits.
- Firing for reasons related to misconduct makes you ineligible for benefits. However, if you're fired simply because you weren't a good fit or lacked the skills to perform the job, you may be able to collect.
- Quitting would make you ineligible for benefits. If there was a compelling work-related reason that forced you to leave (e.g., sexual harassment, dangerous working conditions, relocation with a military spouse), you will likely receive benefits.

You must have made a certain amount of money before losing your job, which is calculated by your base period. Your base period is the earliest four of the five completed calendar quarters before you filed your benefits claim. For example, if your claim was filed on Oct. 10, 2019, your base period would be the 12-month period beginning July 1, 2018, and ending June 30, 2019. In Nevada, in order to be eligible, you must have earned at least $400 in the highest-paid quarter, as well as meet one of the following criteria:

- Total earnings during the base period are one-and-a-half times your earnings during the highest-paid quarter.
- You earned some wages in at least three of the four quarters of the base period.

You must be able to work, available to work and seeking employment. If you find a suitable position, you must accept it. Suitability varies depending on your skill set, training, salary and more. Over time, if you still haven't found work, you may have to compromise on a job that doesn't quite match what you were doing before.

Duration of Benefits

Nevada residents can collect unemployment benefits for a maximum of 26 weeks, with additional weeks during times of very high unemployment.

Weekly Benefit Rate

You can receive somewhere between $16 and $407 per week.
