

File a Claim

If you've lost your job in New York, you can File a Claim at the New York Department of Labor website.

Eligibility

You must be unemployed through no fault of your own, as defined by New York law. Here are the three primary ways you may lose your job and how each relates to your Eligibility for benefits:

- Layoffs due to “downsizing” or a reduction-in-force will qualify you for benefits.
- Firing for reasons related to misconduct makes you ineligible for benefits. However, if you're fired simply because you weren't a good fit or lacked the skills to perform the job, you may be able to collect.
- Quitting would make you ineligible for benefits. If there was a compelling personal reason that forced you to leave (e.g., sexual harassment, dangerous working conditions, relocation with a military spouse), you will likely receive benefits.

You must have made a certain amount of money before losing your job, which is calculated by your base period. Your base period is the earliest four of the five completed calendar quarters before you filed your benefits claim. For example, if your claim was filed on Oct. 10, 2019, your base period would be the 12-month period beginning July 1, 2018, and ending June 30, 2019. To qualify for benefits in New York, you must meet the following criteria:

- Earned wages in at least two quarters of the base period.
- Wages must equal at least $2,400 in the highest-paid quarter of the base period.
- Wages during the base period must equal at least one-and-a-half times the highest quarter.

You must be able to work, available to work and seeking employment. If you find a suitable position, you must accept it. Suitability varies depending on your skill set, training, salary and more. Over time, if you still haven't found work, you may have to compromise on a job that doesn't quite match what you were doing before.

Duration of Benefits

New York residents can collect unemployment benefits for a maximum of 26 weeks.

Weekly Benefit Rate

You can receive up to a maximum of $420 per week.
